

Dear President Metsola,

We are writing you this letter expressing, first and foremost, what we believe is a joint belief in the importance of the role of the European Parliament, and with a great appreciation of your work in our institution.

We believe that we will find in you someone who shares strongly the values of international law and community, and a strong believer in the role of multilateralism. Therefore, we believe you might be similarly concerned about the attacks that multilateralism has been facing in the past years, and more so the attacks faced by the United Nations, at the core and history of our multilateral world.

To express a strong sentiment from the European Parliament in support of multilateralism and dialogue among nations, we kindly ask you to consider inviting António Guterres, Secretary General of the United Nations, to the European Parliament. We strongly believe that our institution would benefit from being able to have an open and direct debate with him, furthermore, it would not just represent the expression of an European Parliament supportive of multilateral fora, but also grant an opportunity to exchange on what the current challenges are.

In the hope that you will agree with our request, we kindly thank you for your attention.

Best regards,

Leoluca Orlando Gaetano Pedullà Marco Tarquinio
